Syllabus
Learning Objectives
Course prerequisites	Knowledge of European history fundamental themes in modern and contemporary age
Contents	Starting from the premise of continuity in the economic development process, the course aims to illustrate the phases of European economic expansion in the pre-industrial age. Then the course, following a chronological order, moves on the process of economic development that has affected Europe from start of the Industrial Revolution to the recent years. Particular attention will be devoted to the path of industrialization of the European countries and structural change of the various national economies, which are the historical background of the globalization process still going on.
