Basic ability to carry out critical analysis of literary texts. Knowledge and understanding of the main turning points in European history.
Expected learning outcomes	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Knowledge and Understanding: by the end of the course students will be expected to have developed a knowledge and understanding of one or more authors and of a literary genre in a particular era (usually a particular century). They will have improved not only their methods of analysis of narrative texts and poetry but also the ability to collocate them in their historical and cultural contexts. Finally, they will have developed insight into the relevance of what they have studied to the European cultural and literary background. • Applying Knowledge and Understanding: students will have to demonstrate a high-level ability to understand literary language as a result of their reflections on the analytical methodologies. They will also have to improve their ability to contextualise literary phenomena by focusing on the various theories on the subject. • Independent Judgment: as well as reading literary and critical texts, students are required to

	evaluate methodologies; this serves to develop an awareness of differences that is the basis of independent judgment. In particular, students will learn to analyse not only the sources but also the ideological theory and background. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Communicative Abilities: study of literary texts facilitates the acquisition of a more refined vocabulary and more structured syntax. The development of tools for textual analysis enables the student to express complex concepts. The result will be a notable improvement in students' use of Italian, a high level of which is to be considered essential for any post-graduate. • Learning Ability: the acquisition of the abovementioned skills will enable the development of the ability to learn. Exchanges with the teacher and with other students are also an important means of improving learning abilities.
Evaluation criteria	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • For the evaluation of the student's level of Knowledge and Understanding, account will be taken of his/her ability to use appropriate language and advanced tools of textual analysis in the presentation of the literary texts he/she has studied. The student's ability to apply the knowledge he/she has acquired to other historical and literary fields will also be assessed. • For the evaluation of the student's level of Applied Knowledge and Understanding, account will be taken of his/her ability to make connections not only between the various literary texts he/she has studied but also with the historical and cultural context. • For the evaluation of the student's level of Independent Judgment, account will be taken of his/her flexibility in the use of the methods and concepts studied during the course and his/her ability to work with a specialist rather than basic bibliography, thus demonstrating that he/she has improved his/her critical skills. • For the evaluation of the student's level of Communicative Ability, account will be taken of

	how well he/she is able to argue on complex issues with reference to the work of leading critics. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • For the evaluation of the student's level of Learning Ability, account will be taken of his/her analytical understanding of literary texts and their collocation in specific historical contexts related not only to French but also, more generally, to European Literature.
