Prerequisites/Requirements
Expected learning outcomes (according to Dublin Descriptors)	Knowledge and understanding Within the Three year Degree Course in which the teaching of tourism geography is inserted helps the student to know and understand the discipline as a branch of Geography in the cultural, social, economic, political, image, communication and organization of tourist areas, evaluating the disciplinary tradition in Italy and abroad. Applying knowledge and understanding The course aims to provide useful tools not only for the knowledge and understanding of the discipline but above all to create a link with the other disciplines of the Degree Course and to make a common platform on which to develop projects, study cases at regional level, Italian and foreign through a method of application with respect to

	what is studied at a theoretical level. This is fully among the objectives that the geographic disciplines and in this case the Geography of tourism are set to develop individual and group processing skills. Making informed judgements and choices The objective is to provide the student within the Degree Course with the conceptual, methodological and applied tools to be able to recognize, interpret and represent the tourist and relationship space in a critical key. Communicating knowledge and understanding The analysis and application of some specific aspects of the discipline come into the Delphi Technique as a method of brain storming and communication to allow for integration into a diverse workplace. Capacities to continue learning Training in the specific discipline helps to make people understand that tourism is an expression and a measure of men's ability to organize space to enhance it, respecting nature and its essential elements. Therefore tourism in the discipline is evaluated as a factor of development to measure the degree of maturity of the tourist regions. In this sense, intermediate exercises are foreseen that allow to evaluate the different levels of learning

Evaluation criteria	The theoretical part of the Human Geography program for Knowledge and Understanding is supported by the choice of some particularly significant themes for learning. With regard to Applying knowledge and understanding , since Geography is an active discipline that can contribute to the knowledge of phenomena and the territory, the class is encouraged to work in a team. This helps to exercise Making informed judgments and choices , level of maturity and critical skills of the Three Year Degree

	Course student as well as Communicating knowledge and understanding . Capacities to continue learning it is solicited by intermediate exercises that allow to evaluate the different levels of learning. The expected results in the various steps are generally positive.
