Syllabus
Prerequisites/requirements	Knowledge of the historical profile and the classics of Italian literature, from the Origins to the modern age and ability to understand the texts in prose and verse.
Expected learning outcomes	Knowledge and understanding The course of Italian literature makes students able to know the main general issues that have followed from the XVIth to XXth century, with the awareness of the problems associated with the periodization and the specificities that characterize the literature in comparison with the national cultural heritage and the literary historiography in comparison with the other historical sciences. Applying knowledge and understanding Students learn to read, explain and contextualize significant texts of the Italian tradition, and to connect them one another, finding out common elements and the development of the canon and the various literary models. Students will also learn to use bibliographical tools with critical approach. Making informed judgements and choices Through their right knowledge of the Italian works in verse and prose, students recognize the formal characteristics of the literature, as well as its specificity as a critical mediation of the historical general development, based on the application to texts of aesthetic, historiographic, sociological and theoretical categories. Communicating knowledge and understanding Students will achieve the capability of communicate in a clear and correct way. They will speak and write literary contents, they will be able to prove their speech with right informations, and to use documents, demonstrating their use of different approaches and methods.

	Capacities to continue learning
	Studying literature improves capability of learning in the general field of human sciences, gives specific linguistic capabilities, helps students in proceeding to study with self-confidence, because of its richness, towards the second level degree.
Contents	The first semester will propose paths of Italian literary history and texts, from the age of the Lordships to the "Risorgimento"; they outline the main problems of the last Humanism, Renaissance,
	Mannerism, Baroque, Neoclassicism, Illuminism and Romanticism, in the background of the evolution of artistic languages and the historical events, with particular attention to the concept of Modernity.
	The second semester will retrace literary history and texts from Risorgimento to the crisis of the First Republic, that is, from Positivism to the end of the "golden century" of Italian literature; all the poetics of Decadentism, Modernism and Critical Realism will be illustrated, in the light of the historical and social concept of postmodernity or crisis of modernity.
