

The Old Bari and the Murattiano district are the heart of the city and offer a beautiful promenade on the sea. The recently redeveloped Karol Wojtyła Airport has several connections to major European cities.

Bari can be easily reached by plane, motorway, train, and ferry.

The University of Bari

The University of Bari in Italy was founded in 1925. It is a state-supported University, divided into 1 School of Medicine and 23 Departments covering all Italian degrees and focusing on Arts, Sciences, Mathematics, Social Sciences, Literature, Law, and Education.

The University offers various courses for undergraduate, graduate and post-graduate students. Famous for its teaching, the University is also focused on scientific research at the doctorate level. The University of Bari research centres are highly-interactive, having connections among different departments, universities, and other research centres.

The University's facilities include central and departmental libraries, theatres, lecture halls, job placement centres, a press office, counselling centres, and chapels. These facilities are open to students and staff members, and can be used free of charge. Each year, the University sponsors various cultural activities to foster exchanges among local and international students. The Erasmus+ programme is very active in the Medical field (code Bari01).

The Medical School in Bari

The Medical School was established in 1924 together with the Faculties of Pharmacy and Law. The 1st hospital (San Peter's) was based in the Old City and moved afterwards to the Ateneum building in the Murat quarter and, subsequently, to the large Hospital Policlinico in the '50s. Since then, the Hospital has been largely renovated and hosts all Clinical Departments and Specialties, the Dean's Office, the Aula Magna "G. De Benedictis", the "Asclepios" Emergency block and students' facilities, rooms, libraries, and Academic Departments.

The University Rector is Prof. Antonio F. Uricchio (Law), Dean Prof. Paolo Livrea (Neurologist), President of Medical Degrees Prof. Rosario Polizzi, MD (Surgeon), BEMC coordinator and Erasmus+ Delegate Prof. Piero Portincasa (Internist).

PRESENTATION OF BEMC

Italian Universities, with the Italian Ministry of Higher Education and Research (MIUR), offer undergraduate courses taught in English and open to European and extra-European applicants. The Universities of Bari, Milano Statale and San Raffaele, Pavia, Roma La Sapienza and Tor Vergata and Napoli Seconda Università are offering a limited n.of places.

The Bari English Medical Curriculum (BEMC) consists of the 6-yr curriculum for the Medical Degree at the University of Bari, Italy. BEMC is offered to citizens of the EC and to students not residing in the EC. For the academic year 2014-15, Bari will offer 24 places (i.e., 17 for EC citizens and 7 for non-EC citizens). BEMC has been approved by the Faculty of Medicine in Bari since 2012-13 and by the Italian Ministry of Higher Education and Research (MIUR). The third academic year of BEMC will start in October 2014.

The course is similar to the standard Italian medical curriculum in Bari. Teaching will consist of lectures, patient demonstrations, clinical skills, seminars, distance learning, self-study, and special sessions with foreign teachers belonging to a Network for Excellence in Medical Education. The strength of BEMC is based on small classes, all courses taught in English, excellent mix of theory and practice, international environment, and global Campus network.

ADMISSION TEST

Applicants for the existing courses taught in Italian, currently take an Italian admissions test (developed by the Italian Commission), with the available places awarded to those scoring highest on the test. MIUR has asked the Cambridge Assessment's Admissions Testing Service to develop and deliver the English language equivalent of this Italian admissions test, with the test taking place on Tuesday 29th of April 2014. The admission exams for the academic year 2014-15 will be organized by International Medical Admissions Test (IMAT) (imat@cambridgeassessment.org.uk).

BEMC & The Network of Excellence In Medical Teaching

The Medical School is developing a network of excellence for offering the best teaching facilities to BEMC students. Contacts are in progress with several Universities involved in Erasmus+ mobility programs of students/teachers and extra-EC Universities with exceptional teaching facilities. From time to time, BEMC will be implemented with teaching aids (lessons, practical skills, simulators, stages abroad, distance learning). Universities joining the network so far include Harvard Medical School - Boston, Saint Louis University (USA), Ludwig-Maximilians-Universität - Munich, Saarbrücken Universität, Homburg (Germany), "Iuliu Hatieganu" University Cluj-Napoca, "Victor Babes" University Timisoara, "Carol Davila" University, Bucharest Universitate (Romania), Varna University (Bulgaria), Lublin University (Poland), University of Pamplona (Spain), Utrecht University (Netherlands), University of Coimbra (Portugal) etc.

The admission test will be run on-site in each university (paper work) plus some foreign cities (website) according to the following list (www.universityali.it):

The city of Bari. From Greek Βάριον - Bárión, Latin Barium (coordinates 41°08'N 16°52'E) is the charming capital city of Apulia, a region in southern-east Italy bordering the Adriatic sea. Bari's rich cultural history is derived from Greeks, Romans, Byzantines, Arabs, Normans, Swabians, Spanish, French, and Italians. The city is well known for its harbour and University (est. 1924). Always considered to be the Italian gateway to the East (the Levant), Bari serves as an ideal bridge between Western and Eastern cultures. In addition to several museums, Bari boasts very important monuments including the Castello Svevo (Swabian Castle) of Frederick II of Hohenstaufen (the Holy Roman Emperor), the Basilica of Saint Nicholas (the patron of the city), many splendid examples of the typical Apulian Romanesque Churches scattered throughout the region, the Petruzzelli Theatre and the "Russian" Church.
