| Syllabus             |   |
|----------------------|---|
| Learning Objectives  | Students will acquire knowledge of the main social theory of migration, knowledge of the main trends in contemporary migration law and policies, and a critical understanding of the social and political dynamics driving border control practices. They will also develop a peculiar ability to understand the implications of contemporary border control practices for the protection of the human rights of migrants and refugees. Students will be constantly stimulated to debate and critical discussion. During the course they will also be invited to carry out small researches on related topics and present them orally during 'class discussion' sessions. |
| Course prerequisites | None  |
| Contents             | The course can ideally be divided in two main sections during which eight main topics will be addressed. The first section (topics 1 to 4) will offer a general introduction to the social theory of migration, and an overview on migration law and policies in contemporary societies. The second section (topics 5 to 8) will focus on the changing nature of borders and will describe the most recent developments in border control practices across main destination countries of migration, with a  |
